Information for health professionals

Bereavement Support Services

Supporting any person affected by the sudden and unexpected death of their baby or child at any time during pregnancy, birth, infancy and childhood.

Red Nose Grief and Loss is aware that people need different kinds of support at different times, following the death of a baby or child.

The range of services we offer include:

Counselling

Bereavement counselling by qualified professionals is available to individuals and families, by phone, face to face, or online. There may be a charge for these services in some regions.

24 Hour Bereavement Support Line 1300 308 307

Red Nose through qualified clinicians and trained volunteer peer supporters provide support and information to anyone impacted by the death of a baby or child. This service is available 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

Peer and Family Support

Parents who have previously experienced the death of their baby or child are actively involved in providing support to bereaved families. Red Nose trained Peer Supporters are available to talk with bereaved parents, family members and friends by phone, face to face or online.

Support Groups

A range of regular support groups facilitated by qualified staff and peer support volunteers provide an opportunity for anyone impacted by the death of a baby or child to share experiences and support one another in a safe and caring environment. We offer information sessions, workshops and groups with a specific focus, such as stillbirths, subsequent pregnancy, SUDI, termination and men's groups. Please refer to our website for details, rednosegriefandloss.com.au

Support Literature

Red Nose in conjunction with bereaved parents, families and health professionals has developed a variety of booklets and articles relating to different aspects of grief. These are available on our website and subjects include:

- Miscarriage
- Choices in arranging a child's funeral
- Sudden Unexpected Death of an Infant (SUDI) - including SIDS
- Stillbirth
- Medical termination
- Having another baby
- Grandparent grief
- Sibling grief
- Relationships
- Men's grief

Newsletter

Red Nose provides a regular bereavement support newsletter which provides bereaved parents, family and friends the opportunity to celebrate the life of their child, however brief it may have been. This newsletter also provides updates on the work of Red Nose and upcoming groups and events.

Health Promotion and Community Education

Education focused on bereavement and its impact on families is also provided to health professionals, community groups, workplaces or family support networks to assist in supporting bereaved families. To find out more please call the Bereavement Support Line, 1300 308 307.

Library

A library of support literature is available for bereaved families including books and DVDs. These can be accessed through our website or by calling the bereavement support line, 1300 308 307.

Treasured Babies' Program

Available to some maternity hospitals this program provides memorial items for families whose baby has died in the perinatal period. The packs contain specially designed and appropriately sized garments and other memorabilia. This can reduce some of the stress at a time that is already very difficult.
